Floors Burglar With Blackjack, Phones Sheriff

Tavern Owner's 5-Week Vigil Brings Results As He Captures Intruder Single-Handed; Youth, 21, Held For Breaking And Entering.

The five-week vigil of George Urdia, proprietor of the Ideal lunch room and tavern at 721 Bowman street, produced results early today when Urdia captured a burglar single-handed in the tavern.

Urdia has slept in the tavern since Jan. 5 when the establishment was burglarized, waiting for the burglar to return. About 3 a. m. today he heard someone pry open the kitchen window and climb into the room, he told Sheriff E. P. Long.

Waiting until the intruder approached the counter, Urdia slugged him with a blackjack and tied his arms and legs with rope. Then he called the sheriff. When Long and Deputy C. C. Gongwer arrived about 3:15 a. m., Urdia was sitting near the prostrate man, holding a gun over him.

"He was unconscious, but he's come to now," Urdia told the officers.

Taken to the county jail, the man gave his name as Washington Carter, 21, of 266 North Franklin street. He is colored. A charge of breaking and entering was filed against him today

County officers were checking fingerprints obtained when the tavern was burglarized a month ago in an attempt to link Carter with that case.

In the previous breaking and entering the burglar stole a cigaret vending machine and five quarts of whisky. He also entered through a window, but authorities had been unable to find any trace of him although they obtained fingerprints from the window pane. The lunch room and tavern is just outside the city limits.

Urdia said he had been expecting the intruder to return and was prepared for him with the blackjack and revolver. He was sleeping on a cot in the tavern.

KILLED BY CAR AS HE WALKS ON HIGHWAY

Steel Worker, 51, First Person to Lose Life This Year in County Traffic.

6 HURT IN OTHER MISHAPS

Fatality Just Outside City, First in Richland in 44 Days; Driver Not Held.

Richland county's first fatal traffic accident of the year claimed the life last night of a 51-year-old steel worker who was killed almost instantly when struck by an automobile as he walked along the highway on Bowman street road, just outside the city limits.

The first traffic death in the county in 44 days, it was almost a month later than the first fatal accident of 1939.

Rain, fog, and icy highways over the week-end were the contributing cause for numerous automobile mishaps in the Mansfield area in which six persons were injured, two of whom are still in the hospital.

Peter Stroia, 51, of 134 Louis avenue, the victim of the fatal accident, died in an ambulance on the way to General hospital shortly after 6.40 p. m. yesterday.

Coroner Hugh C. Winbigler said he had a skull fracture and both legs were broken.

Stroia, apparently walking in the highway because of the icy condition of the sidewalks, was struck by an automobile driven by Francis C. Marvin, 34, of R. D. 3, Mansfield, state highway patrolmen said.

The accident occurred near the intersection of Harmon avenue, outside the city.

Marvin, who was not held, told highway patrolmen that he was traveling south and did not see the man in time to avoid hitting him.

Blinded by Other Car.

He said he was blinded by the lights of an approaching car and swerved his machine when the figure loomed up in the darkness.

Marvin carried the man onto the porch of the home of John Leonard, 805 Bowman street, and then called an ambulance.

Stroia who was born in Rumaina, was employed at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate com-

FIND BODY OF GIRL IN CREEK

400 Searchers End Hunt as Firemen See 8-Year-Old in Stream Near Home.

(By International News Service)

RUNNEMEDE, N. J.—Climaxing an 18-hour search, which spread to three states after a kidnaping theory was advanced by authorities, the body of eight-year-old Walerga "Honey" Cooper was found today in Big Timber creek, 400 yards from her mother's home in nearby Glendora.

Two of the 400 volunteers who joined in the night long search dragged the schoolgirl's body from the creek's bottom. They were Horace Williamson and Stewart English, chief and assistant chief respectively of the Chews Landing volunteer fire company.

The body, wedged in the crotch of a water-logged tree was pulled to the surface shortly after 10 a. m.

"Honey" disappeared while on a walk to show her two most prized possessions, a bright new snow suit and a pin, both of which had been awarded to her for a year's perfect Sunday school attendance. When she failed to return home last evening with her seven brothers and sisters, her mother informed police and the search was organized.

"Honey" lived with her mother, Mrs. Anna Cooper, a former member of Camden county Republican committee, in a house on the bank of the creek in which her body was found. Her parents are estranged.

LASHES BURTON ON 'SLUSH FUND'

Labor League Flays Cleveland Mayor Here for Parley With Political Leaders.

While Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland was in Mansfield today conferring with G. O. P. leaders from seven northcentral Ohio counties, Labor's Non-Partisan league lashed out at him at Cleveland, charging that he was attempting to set up a $2,000,000 "political slush fund" to help elect him to the U. S. senate.

Declaring that a proposed $10,000,000 city operating levy "is too high," — almost $2,000,000 more than last year, the CIO-backed league officials asserted:

"This additional money is to be used, not for relief or for City hospital, but for a political slush fund to elect Burton to the senate, and to provide pay raises for Burton and his cabinet, although Burton is spending his time campaigning and not even working at his job."

Burton was here at noon today o have luncheon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel with Republican executive and central committee chairmen from Richland, Ashland, Knox, Morrow, Wyandot, Crawford, and Marion counties.

Burton could not be contacted immediately for a reply to the attack made by the Non-Partisan league.

In a question and answer forum conducted at the luncheon Burton related his views on the unemployment problem.

"We must have a restoration of confidence to get idle men back to work," he said. "The only way this can be done is by sending men to Washington who will establish that confidence."

As to Cleveland's relief problem, Burton predicted that the city will have a deficit of $1,500,000 in relief funds unless there is some action taken within the next few months.

LIKE SPRING

Mercury Climbs to Highest Mark in Month.

The calendar says spring is nearly six weeks away but Mansfielders could feel it in the air today as the mercury climbed to the highest mark in a month.

Although the average temperature for the past 24 hours was just normal, the mercury registered 42 degrees at noon, highest since Jan. 14, and the air seemed balmy after the long siege of cold.

The weatherman spoiled the illusion of spring, however, by forecasting colder weather and occasional snow flurries tonight and Tuesday. There wasn't much cold on the weather map today, so the temperature was not expected to fall very low.

Coldest reported in the nation was 13 above zero at Duluth, Minn., and other mid-western points had readings well above freezing.

2 O. S. R. Inmates Escape Through Hospital Window

Snow Tracks Indicate Pair Evidently Got Ride After Reaching Highway; Hunt On Throughout State.

Two inmates who lowered themselves from a hospital window and fled from the Ohio State reformatory early yesterday were being hunted by police officers throughout the state today.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke identified the pair as Joe Frolicher, 21, of Cincinnati, who was serving a 10 to 25 year sentence for robbery, and Harold Smith, 24, of Allen county, sentenced to one to 15 years for burglary and larceny.

He said both were semi-trusties and had been assigned to work in the hospital which is outside the prison walls. The escape was believed to have taken place about 7:30 a. m., the superintendent said. They were missed at the 8 a. m. "count."

Investigation disclosed that an unbarred window on the first floor of the east wing of the hospital had been used for the escape.

The window, Glattke said, was only a few feet from the ground and is located close to the greenhouse which might serve as a shield as they fled east towards route 545.

An alarm was sounded and guards tracked the pair, both of whom were wearing reformatory garb, in the snow to the highway where they were believed to have obtained a ride from a passing motorist.

Gardner, who spoke at the annual winter conference of the Ninth district of the Ohio department, added that, "we of the Legion believe that Lewis' statements regarding the president did not represent the thoughts of his organization."

Lewis, the CIO head, came out against a third term for the president in a talk at the recent CIO convention in Columbus.

Brick or Concrete Roadway to Be Decided at Parley Today on Paving Squabble.

The wrangle over the West Fourth street reconstruction proposal was expected to be settled this afternoon by city and state highway officials who were scheduled to confer on the type of pavement to be laid.

George Berg, chairman of council's street committee, said that council would insist on a brick surface although Murray D. Shaffer division highway engineer at Ashland had proposed a brick and concrete roadway.

He said he expected a decision would be reached without difficulty since the difference in the type of paving had only been a matter of cost.

Highway officials last week had suggested that a 22-foot center lane of concrete be put down with six-foot brick parking strips on either side. It was estimated that the difference in cost would be about $10,000.

City officials contended that the brick surface would give longer service in view of the fact that the treet is travelled by heavy transport trucks.

Finns Set to Fire Forests To Halt Reds

Government Plans New Defense Measures For Spring, Summer.

(Editor's Note Webb Miller, veteran United Press war correspondent has just emerged from Finland after covering the war from the fighting front as well as from Helsinki In his first dispatch from a neutral capital, free of any restrictions but those governed by confidences imposed in him, he tells of the actual situation in Finland today.)

By WEBB MILLER

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (U.P.)— The Finns have beaten off the first phase, at least of the greatest Russian attack of the war, an attempt to break through the heart of the Mannerheim defense line

The Finns are getting much more aid, in terms of fighting airplanes, than most people either in Finland or abroad realize.

Within two months at most the Finns should have a fighting air fleet to hold off the Russian mass bombing flights

For spring and summer operations, the Finns are prepared to set fires all over the country, in great marshland areas, as a smoke screen against bombing planes, and to set "back fires" in the forests so that the Russians will not be able to fire the thick Finnish forests with incendiary bombs.

Reports abroad that the Russian army is poor are untrue and the Finns now realize that it is undesirable that such an impression should be entertained.

It is, I believe, a fact that the first phase of the Mannerheim attack has failed. The strength of the Russian attacks is gradually weakening and the Finnish staff feels no anxiety Evidence is that the offensive has almost spent its force.

Maps Crusher Attack.

The failure of the Russian Mannerheim attack does not mean that the Russians will not later renew their offensive. Everything points to the contrary, toward a quickening of the tempo of their

SEARCH HOMES

Police Hunt Guns Believed Stolen During IRA Riots.

BELFAST, North Ireland—(U.P.)—Police raided house after house during the night hunting 30 rifles stolen from the British military camp at Ballykinlar during a week-end of Irish Republican army tumult.

Aroused to a new fury both here and in Eire by the hanging of two of its members last week, the I. R. A. was blamed for the arsenal raid and for a street riot here in which 2,000 demonstrators fought several hundred police for 20 minutes

In the aftermath of the rioting, a tense silence settled over the city. Shades were drawn in houses and few people were on the streets.

British authorities feared that the disturbances would grow worse as the I. R. A. backed by nationalist Irishmen in both Eire and Ulh Ireland took advantage of Britain's war to resume their struggle for a united nation free of British influences

Russia Says 16 Fortifications Captured But Finland Claims Mannerheim Line Intact.

BULLETIN

LONDON —(AP)— Britain today announced a new British-Turkish trade treaty would go into effect Feb. 19 to remain in force for one year and successive annual periods unless abrogated.

(By Associated Press)

A new Russian-German trade treaty was projected into the European scene today as a possibly potent factor in the continent's two wars.

Those two conflicts were highlighted by the arrival of Australian and New Zealand troops at Suez to augment allied forces in the Near East, and Russian announcement that 16 Finnish fortifications had been captured. An Associated Press correspondent who went into the Mannerheim line reported there was no break as far as he could see.

Authoritative Berlin sources told of the Nazi-Communist trade part enlarging economic cooperation provided in their first trade agreement last August which called for exchange of Russian raw materials for German manufactured products.

The new treaty was described as synchronizing the needs of the two nations, each at war against different foes.

The Australian and New Zealand expeditionary forces, greeted at Suez by Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden, gave Britain reinforcements for already heavy allied concentrations in the Near East. Canadian and Indian troops already have swelled the allied forces on the western front.

Regarded to be one of Europe's richest men Thyssen's German holdings much of them in the great steel trust of which he was president were confiscated by the German government last November shortly after he arrived in Switzerland

Thyssen was credited with swinging many of his fellow industrialists behind Hitler when the latter was rising to power.

He has declined to throw any light on the cause of his falling out with Hitler.

Farley Calls Lincoln 'Founder Of Good Will' At Dedication

(By United Press)

NEW SALEM, Ill. Postmaster General James A Farley today paid tribute to Postmaster Abraham Lincoln

He spoke at the dedication of the postoffice in the restored general store where the emancipator president held his first public office from 1833 to 1836. The address was broadcast over a nation-wide network.

Farley said that it was during his term as postmaster that Lincoln established the "firm foundation of good will" for his career as a lawyer legislator and president He said his rise was possible only because of the Democratic system of government in the United States.

"In this age of dictatorship and government by cruel violence, it is heartening to recall that Abraham Lincoln was a product of democratic government," Farley said. "His rise to eminence and immortality in the annals of statecraft would have been impossible under any other system.

"The only power Lincoln had came from within, from the sublime qualities of a lofty spiritual nature Throughout his life he was a man of the prairies who was accustomed to think in terms of man's eternal struggle against the elements for the simple comforts of decent food and adequate shelter."

He said the most important lesson in Lincoln career for those

Economic warfare was intensified as Britain made plans for sending a corps of super-salesmen around the world to capture German foreign trade and Italy neared a new commercial agreement with Turkey.

Official Istanbul quarters predicted the Italian treaty would enable Italy to displace Germany in the expanding Turkish market.

Anti-Communist Front Discussed In Capitals.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark—(U P)—The possibility that a world anti-Communist front might be formed to save Finland and prevent the spread of Communism through Europe and Asia was discussed today in Scandinavian capitals

President Roosevelt's criticism of Russian totalitarianism and sensational Swedish raids against Communist centers were but two of many incidents which some quarters took as indications of the possibility of a new orientation

The president's speech, and the Swedish raids, coincided with renewed Scandinavian protests against Germany's attacks on neutral shipping and with indications of closer German-Russian co-operation.

Weekend developments, all perhaps part of one diplomatic picture, included

1—President Roosevelt's attack on Russia in Washington on Saturday.

2—The Swedish raids which resulted in the arrest of scores of Communist leaders and the seizure of many documents

3—Substantiation from a reliable source that the staffs of the British and and French embassies at Moscow are systematically burning confidential documents, at first reported by the newspaper Telegraaf of Amsterdam Saturday.

4—A blistering denunciation of Russia and Germany, by the powerful, and decidedly left wing, French general confedation of labor

Reds Throw New Troops Against Mannerheim Line

HELSINKI—(U P)—A war communique today said that "several divisions" of the Red army had renewed with greater intensity the Russian offensive against the Mannerheim line and that fighting continued on a big scale

A Russian division is 15,000 to 18 000 men, indicating that more than 50,000 Red army troops had been thrown into the offensive after 11 days of pounding at the Finnish lines

The greatest pressure was in the Summa sector of the Karelian isthmus front, the communique said. Artillery, tanks and aircraft in increasingly large numbers hammered at the Finnish defenders there, it was announced.

Fighting was described as particularly fierce on the neck of and between the Mulajervi and Vuoksi, where infantry attacks were supported by airplane bombardment, artillery fire and 150 tanks, which formed a spearhead for the thrust against the Finnish lines.

The communique also said that the Russians again attempted to turn the flank of the Mannerheim line in the Taipale sector, adjacent to Lake Ladoga, but were turned back after four hours of fighting in which 72 tanks were destroyed.

Claims It's Not Gangsterism But Smoke, Makes New York Slang.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Perhaps, you have always thought gangsters and rowdies gave New York its "dese" and "dose" and "Toity Toid" street lingo

Well, you can take it from a man who has studied the patois for 13 years—"it's just a form of baby talk, and it's getting worse"

According to Victor A Fields director of a speech clinic at City College of New York, three conditions have created this dialect which is so amusing, or distressing to other Americans

A "deafening bombardment" of noises in streets and subways—A person learns to speak correctly or incorrectly through the ear, he explained, and when you can't hear words well you can't be expected to speak good English

Dull surrounding and skies overcast with smoke and air pollution —The drab colorless vista of New York, he said, is reflected in a mumbled language of monotones.

Subordinate office worker — Hurried, mumbled tones, frequent hesitation even in a single sentence.

Subordinate office worker — Hurried, mumbled tones frequent hesitation even in a single sentence

New Anti-Aircraft Shell Fouls Enemy Planes In Mesh of Wire

WASHINGTON—Ordnance experts said recently an anti-aircraft shell designed to enmesh planes in steel cables suspended from a parachute had been developed in this country and might play an important part in the European war

It was released for sale abroad after American army tests and the invention was understood to have been sold to France

Whether a similar weapon has been developed for American defenses or whether the war department rejected it after the tests was not disclosed

The shell was described as the standard three-inch size

Instead of bursting into flying shrapnel at the normal maximum altitude of five or six miles, it releases a parachute trailing hundreds of feet of steel tape designed to foul the propellers or other parts of hostile planes.

Some experts predicted the weapon would make obsolete such fixed defenses against air raids as the balloon barrage used in London They viewed it as an effective supplement of the existing anti-aircraft shells

The key to the invention was said to be the means of winding the tape within the shell and of releasing the nose with the parachute from the jacket Hundreds of feet of the tape were wound tightly within the jacket in the army tests

Informally Speaking...

Monday, Feb. 12.

Lucy, dear:

Today just about made up for all the bad weather we've had so far this winter—with the bright sun, blue sky and almost warm "breeze," it's been just as spring-like out as any day in February ever could be. . . . Of course it puts a krimp in winter sports—but then it makes one less envious of those lucky folks who are vacationing in Florida and other "warm winter" states.

Marianne

* * * * *

Speaking of those folks, Lucy, the morning mail brought a card from Mrs. S. R. Baird, who's vacationing in Miami, Fla. with her husband and Mr. and Mrs. V. A Seifert, friends from Massillon. . . . She writes that the weather there is perfect and that she feels "almost like Alice in Wonderland," it's so nice down there.

* * * * *

Had a card from Mrs. Frank Michael today too—she's down in Cristobal, Panama Canal Zone now with her husband. . . . She says the days there are terribly hot (and it's rather hard for me to believe that any day could be too hot after all the frigid weather we've had though—how about you, Lucy?), but that the trade winds keep the nights comparatively cool. . . . Mrs. Michael (whom you probably remember better as Alice Parkinson of this city) joined her husband in Cristobal early in January—he's been stationed there as a construction engineer for the U. S. government since last October, but she writes that she's homesick for the good old U.S.A. already.

* * * * *

Carl Weller arrived in town today from Morgantown, W. Va. to spend the week with his parents, Mr and Mrs. E S. Weller—Incidentally, Lucy, the Wellers are leaving next week for Hollywood, Fla., where they'll vacation for quite some time. . . . Mrs. Paul Wier and her children are visiting down in the sunshine state now, too

* * * * *

A GROUP of Mansfielders spent the week-end in a proverbial winter wonderland—Marjorie High, Marie Kalbfleisch Loretta Zeller, Stella Arras, Florence Cairns, Virginia Dye, Georgiana Chidsey and Florence Young went up to Buffalo and Niagara Falls Saturday afternoon and returned late last night . . . They said the falls were nearly all frozen over and really a beautiful sight.

* * * * *

Helen Hunter came to Mansfield yesterday from Auburn, N. Y. for a visit with Bill Daugherty and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Daugherty. . . . Bill was working in Auburn, you know, before being transferred back here a few weeks ago.

* * * * *

FRIDAY NIGHT was the annual J-Hop at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, and more than 3,000 of the university students enjoyed dancing to the music of not only one, but two good bands—Tommy Dorsey and Ted Fie Rito. . . . Mary Leigh Burleson, who's a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority at the school, was a lucky Mansfielder at the formal affair.

* * * * *

Marie Marks Porterfield accompanied Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Seybold to Columbus yesterday to attend a concert of the Ohio State Symphony orchestra at Memorial hall in the afternoon. . . . Jean Seybold, who's studying piano in Columbus, appeared as guest soloist with the orchestra. Later in the afternoon her teacher honored Jean and the conductor of the orchestra with a tea at the Faculty club, when Mr. and Mrs. Seybold were in the receiving line. . . . And that's not all, Lucy, Jean will appear as guest pianist with the Symphonic choir in concert next Sunday afternoon.

* * * * *

Other week-end vacationists were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gimbel and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Eckert, who went visiting in Cleveland. . . . And that seems to be all the news for today, so I'll write again next week.

Lovingly,

Marianne

Support of Aged Relative Big Problem

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A letter in the morning's mail pulls me up with a good sharp turn. My correspondent writes that I am too partial to old people, and that in the world-wide battle of inlaws I stand up for the aged, rather than the youthful belligerents.

We have been reminded that "the quality of mercy is not strained" and I cannot help feeling deep sympathy for old people who are quitting the scene and who hold desperately to their memories of the past. Unless they're very exceptional old people, who else have they to hold to, except these memories of days when they were all in all to their boys and girls, heads of families, their little worlds rotating around them?

In the cycle of human lives it is self-evident to remind you that there is the upgrade to maturity, and then the circle slows down to another childhood. A pitiful childhood, with none of those beguiling graces of the early years that insured the doting affection of the family. This second childhood may be as perverse, even as mischievous as the first, and it certainly lacks the physical beauty of that first unfolding. It requires patience, which alas, is seldom meted out to it. That's my excuse for being so sorry for older people.

Quoting from a letter received today, a wife writes: "My young daughter was obliged to give up her room to her grandmother and sleep on a couch in the living-room. She was supposed to keep two drawers in the dresser for her own use, and her grandmother objects to this and says 'I can't have her rushing in and out of my room at all times.'

"My husband's two older brothers are very well-to-do; one has an income of $10,000 a year and could amply care for his mother in comfort. But both of these men confine their responsibility to sending grandma a card at Christmas. Not even do they send a five-dollar bill which would give her a little extra change. Their wives both wear mink coats. Are not these sons legally bound to help support their mother? We'd like to keep this out of the courts, and we don't want to hurt grandma's feelings, but do you think it is just?

"DAUGHTER-IN-LAW."

Of course, there is no justice or even decency in the state of affairs you relate. The older sons should be made to contribute to their mother's support, even at the expense of their wives' mink coats. But whether they can be made to do so by law raises a nice legal technicality.

After due inquiry of the proper authorities, I am told that laws differ in different states as to obligations incurred by children in the support of their parents. The better plan would be for you to consult your local Legal Aid society or Domestic Relations court. It's likely that the prosperous sons would not care to have this matter brought into court, yet at the same time it's unbelievable that well-to-do men could evade such a responsibility.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

It was something more than the mere arrival of the harps I learned when Katie fairly burst into the room at my "Come in!"

"Oh-h! Misses Graham!" she exclaimed. "Sooch a doings outside! Men mit big trook und beeg boxes on it start cooming in gate, und state cops dey stop dem, und men say they bent sent for, und cops get Meester Graham und Meester Undervood oudt, und dey say dey know noddings, und cops tell trook to get back, und men dey say Meester Veritzen he tell dem to come, und den Meester Graham send me a rooning to get you. He say maybe you know vot all the shootin's fer."

As I came up Dickey whirled and shot a vehement question at me.

"Do you know anything about this particular hill of beans?" he asked.

"Yes, I hoed it," I retorted, and he gave me a reluctant grin.

"I thought so, Harry," he growled, and as Mr. Underwood cocked an inquisitive and mirthful eye at me, my husband broke into emphatic speech.

"For love of your aunt's second ond husband, don't hold out on us!" he adjured me. "What's the joke?—or it it?"

"It's no joke, and the explanation is very simple," I said.

"Don't ask now!" I urged him under my breath. "I'll explain everything when we're inside."

"Okay!" he answered and turned to the officer still guarding the gate.

"It's all right," he said. "The truck can come through."

But the officer had other views.

"Sorry," he sad, "out they'll have to open those boxes out here, before I can let them go into the house. I'll have to see what's in them. Your father's orders are very strict, Mrs. Graham." He turned to me apologetically.

"And you are quite right in obeying them," I told him promptly.

"All right, get busy!" the officer commanded, and the truckman with much grumbling, opened the cases.

"They're harps, all right," the officer decided when he had inspected them. "All right. You can go through."

"Where do you want them?" Dickey asked.

"In the library," I decided, and while the truckman was unloading them, I told Harry and Dicky briefly of Philip Veritzen's magnificent gesture to Olina, and dispatched Katie to summon the young princess to the library.

Make Plans For College Early

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

MANY boys and girls who hope to go to college next year have already done considerable thinking and talking with their parents about the matter. Since they entered the seventh or eighth grade they probably have, with the advice of their home room teacher, special adviser or principal (together with their parents, we trust), been shaping each semester's courses for college entrance.

Some students, alas, have given no thought to the subjects which will have to be covered and credits required for entering college. Some do not get wise guidance in this respect at school or home. Sad may be their disappointment and that of their parents when it is discovered that they have not enough credits in such subjects as mathematics or foreign languages to enter a first class college. For some of these students it still might not be too late to earn, during the final semester, the required credits that are lacking.

If you hope to send to college your son or daughter who is now a senior in high school, you will want to check the facts with the youth and probably with the school also.

Talk to Adviser.

Moreover, it might be very profitable to you and your child for you to sit in conference with him and a school adviser, to talk over this child's interests and the particular college or kind of college he desires to enter. This school expert usually has a great deal of wisdom of which parents and children should avail themselves.

Then there's the question of the quality of grades the prospective college student has earned in high school. In order to enter college he will have to rank in the upper third, as a rule, or pass college entrance examinations.

The matter of physical and mental health should be considered; the family purse may have to be.

Recently I visited a high grade junior college, covering the first two years of college, with credits accepted by any other high grade college or university. In order to enter this junior college the student must be poor; at least he must be financially unable to enter the average liberal arts college. But he must rank in the upper third of his high school class and be willing to work two and one-half hours a day.

Tragic Situation.

It has always seemed to me a tragedy that so many bright young men and women of high character should, for want of funds, be denied college when so many dull, unpromising rich sons and daughters are practically driven to college. Too often the wrong people go to college.

In choosing a college it is well for the youth to consider what he expects to get out of college; what he has to put into it by way of high school achievement, habits of mental work and qualities of character; and the kind of college which should best help him realize this expectation.

There are a number of books which should help one in thinking over these matters. A selected list of such books may be had by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. You will probably find these books in your public library.

Teasers are hearty appetizers that men are sure to like. Roll out biscuit dough ¼ inch thick. Cut into rounds with a small biscuit cutter, about 1 inch in diameter. Slice tiny cocktail sausages very thin. Cover a biscuit with sausage slices, then with another biscuit, more sausage and another biscuit. Press together at one side. Set "sandwiches" on end in small muffin pans. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Serve hot on appetizer tray with stuffed olives.

Often house plants need water on their leaves. Spray them each week with lukewarm water from a rubber-bulb atomizer. This not only supplies the needed moisture but helps remove dust.

Exercise While Doing Home Tasks

By MME. QUI VIVE

Busy housewives believe, and with reason, that making the domestic wheels go round is all the exercise they need. What with pushing the carpet sweeper, the vacuum cleaner and the floormop it wouldn't seem as if anything more need be done with the arms to keep them normal. Mama makes beds, scours bathtubs, leans over the sink and the washtub, manipulates pots and pans as a juggler tosses little red balls around. Exercise? Don't make her laugh.

We would suggest, in all meekness of spirit, that she turn her activities into health-giving exercises. She will be attending to her home job and her beauty duties at the same time. If she will mind the way she carries her body, try to put a bit of rhythm in her movements, she will not be dog tired at the end of the day. Working with spinal curves all wrong, shoulders thrown forward, causes fatigue. Her work will be done restfully and she will get from it a certain exhilaration, instead of a sinking sense of wear and tear.

* * *

Method and system! Law and order! The domestic works run smoothly. No lost movements. System makes for a more tranquil mental state. When you pick up an article, put it in its place. Don't do small tasks twice. Exercise authority with children. Parents also have rights.

Don't consider housekeeping as tiresome drudgery. It isn't. Charming women make charming homes, and charming homes make for a better world.

Now for the physical part. Bend from the hips, not from the waistline. After stooping to pick up something from the floor, stretch the spinal column. Do that when getting things from high shelves.

When walking in the house, move as splendidly as you do on the street when you are on parade. Good posture will become a habit.

If possible have a period of complete relaxation some time in the afternoon. Lie on your back, close your eyes, think of quiet places—mountains, rivers, moving clouds. By visualizing pictures that are restful you will ease your mind of whatever may be bothering you. A grand pickup.

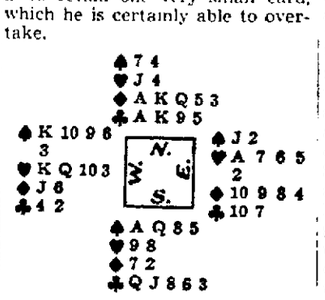
"The Authority on Authorities"

KEEP A LITTLE CARD

An encouraging high card by your partner on the first trick of your four-card suit, opened against a hostile No Trump contract, always should make you consider that he may have a holding longer than yours. If he has, you want to be sure not to prevent him from having the lead to cash his smallest cards, after the declarer's stoppers have been hammered out. The only sure way to be ready to place him in the lead is to retain one very small card, which he is certainly able to overtake.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

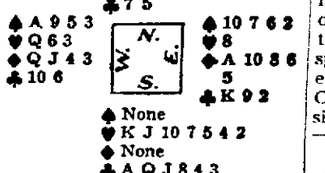
Bad bidding got South into a No Trump game on this deal, and only bad play by West enabled him to make it. North properly bid him 1-Diamond, then South called 1-Spade, North 3-Diamonds, then South 3-No Trumps, with no heart stoppers, hoping North's jump bid indicated some.

West led his heart K, East signaling with the 7. So West repeated the suit, sending the 3 to East's A. When the 5 came back, West took the Q and 10, but could not get East in for a fifth and setting trick. He switched then to a spade and the declarer ran game. Upon seeing East's heart 7, West should have led his Q, 10 and 3, to get the first five tricks.

Peculiarly, the bad bidders made a game not possible by better bidding, such as North 1-Diamond, South 2-Clubs, North 3-Clubs, South 3-Spades, North 4-Diamonds and South 5-Clubs. Since the diamonds wouldn't break, the declarer would have to lose two hearts and a spade at this correct rubber bridge contract.

* * *

Tomorrows Problem.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

What principle of play must West consider, after South ruffed his spade A lead against 7-Hearts and then led the heart J?

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Pomanders, used in grandmother's time to scent linens and clothes closets, are back in style. To make one, stick cloves as close together as possible, in a large thin-skinned orange. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons of cinnamon mixed with ½ tablespoon of orris root. Wrap carefully in waxed paper and store for two weeks in a covered box. Shake off and the Pomander is ready for use.

To keep light-colored corduroy garments in good condition, soak them two hours in mild soap suds and warm water as soon as they are the least bit soiled. Then wash them in more mild sudsy water and rinse them thoroughly in warm water. Hang up to dry and shake occasionally to get out wrinkles. When perfectly dry, brush them lightly with a soft brush to restore the nap. Press out any bindings or ribbon trimmings with a warm iron.

Something New In Desserts

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

There's always a welcome for a good cake, pudding or dessert that is different. That is why we know that you'll like the recipes offered here today. First comes a pudding both luscious and easy to make. It is really just good old fashioned bread pudding highlighted with chips of mellow-sweet chocolate.

Chocolate Chip Bread Pudding calls for two cups of bread (three slices), two eggs, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and two-thirds cups evaporated milk, one cup boiling water, two squares sweet chocolate (grated), and one-half teaspoon vanilla extract. Place the bread in buttered baking dish. (Cubing the bread makes a more attractive pudding; the cubes stick up in little points all over the top and toast to an attractive golden brown.) Beat the eggs, add the sugar, salt and milk. Stir in the water. Add chocolate and vanilla. Pour over bread. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until set, about 45 minutes. Remember that bread pudding is a custard mixture, and that slow baking is essential. Yield: Six to eight servings.

Party Dessert.

Cocoanut Snow Pudding is delectable for a party dessert, especially a buffet. The amounts given here will yield 10 portions. Make it with tablespoon granulated gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one cup boiling water, one cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons vanilla, three fourths cup shredded coconut and two stiffly-beaten egg whites. Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes, add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add sugar, salt and vanilla. Chill until cold and syrupy. Place in a bowl of cracked ice or ice-water and whip with rotary egg beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Fold in coconut and egg whites. Turn into shallow pan, 8x8 inches. Chill until firm. Cut into one-inch cubes. Pile cubes in sherbet glasses. Serve with a tart orange or lemon sauce. If desired, turn the mixture into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve with a tart sauce.

Something Different.

Sour Cream Spice Cake is really something different and ever so good. It is made with one cup each brown sugar and sour cream, one slightly-beaten egg, one and one-half cups flour, teaspoon baking soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one fourth teaspoon cream of tartar, teaspoon ground nutmeg, teaspoon cinnamon, one half cup each chopped nuts and raisins. Combine all dry ingredients and sift together once. Combine sugar and sour cream, blend and add beaten egg. To this mixture add the dry ingredients, the nuts and raisins. Stir only until blended, no longer. Bake at 350 degrees F. for about 45 minutes.

Spiced Honey Cake is as good as it sounds. Make it with a cup cake flour, one fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon ginger, one-eighth teaspoon allspice, one-half cup each butter and sugar and strained honey, one cup chopped nutmeats and two eggs. Sift first five dry ingredients together. Cream butter and add sugar and honey; beat well. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add sifted dry ingredients and nutmeats. Bake in greased pan lined with waxed paper, in moderate oven. May be frosted or not, as preferred.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, February 13.

A day in which new projects are paramount, with the mind and creative abilities high pitched for ambitious projects, is forecast. While these may be endorsed by superiors and employers, there is some danger of overdoing. There may be a change of plans or surroundings, but refrain from moves that are too radical.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for change in plans and place. There will be sudden urges to put over ambitious projects, with employers aiding and abetting. But do not attempt to go too far with such initiative and enterprise.

A child born on this day may possess fine creative talents and originality. In its high enterprise early training to avoid overdoing is admonished.

GIRL AT THE FRONT + + + + +

CHAPTER XXIII

Several hundred yards from the road, Cameron suddenly stopped and listened.

"What is it?" Claire whispered, alarm showing her face.

"It sounds like a small stream," he said with mock fright. "Let's find it and have breakfast."

They followed the sound and soon came to a beautiful little glade, which made an ideal picnic site. Cameron leaned down and scooped up a handful of the clear sparkling water, tasted it and pronounced it good.

"You know in the excitement last night," he said, "I forgot to fill this army canteen and I've been dying for a drink for hours."

"You have that little bottle of cognac Frau Weber gave you."

"That's just for emergencies; it's not to drink but to moisten our throats."

Bill filled his canteen and offered Claire the first drink. The icy cold water tasted good, and she didn't realize that she, too, had been thirsty for a long time.

"Let's see what we have in the way of lunch," she suggested. In the paper bag Frau Weber had given her were a dozen slices of dark bread and several cakes of chocolate.

"Look out for splinters," Cameron joked as Claire bit into a piece of bread. "It's made from finely ground up wood pulp, you know."

* * *

The girl nodded. Lili had told her of some of the substitutes Germany had been using for months before the war.

"It's at least filling," Claire said, "although I won't guarantee its nourishing qualities. I don't see how the people exist on this sort of thing. No wonder Frau Weber and Lili are as thin as rails."

"It can't go on for very long," Cameron agreed. "Unless they get food supplies from some place, the whole nation is going to collapse physically. They ruined Poland, and what the Germans didn't destroy the Poles did."

"How about Russia?" Claire asked.

"They have none too much food themselves. Thousands of people in Russia almost starve to death every year, through crop failure and poor management. Properly organized, they should raise enough wheat for all Europe, but they've never had enough for themselves."

After they had breakfasted meagerly to conserve their supplies, they retraced their steps to the path and Claire soon led Bill into the clearing where Rene had set his plane down in the dark.

"He must be a wizard to get in and get out of a place like this in the dark," Cameron exclaimed.

"We did hit pretty hard," Claire confessed. "But there was a flash of light just before we landed."

"I hope if he comes again, it will be by daylight, even if the risk is greater. It would be awful for him to crack up here—then we all would be in the soup." He fished about in the pockets of his German uniform for a cigaret, but failing to find any picked up a twig from the ground and put it in his mouth.

* * *

Suddenly it dawned on him what Claire had said.

"You said you saw a flash of light before you landed?" he demanded.

She nodded, "Yes, but I didn't see any light later after I left the plane."

"Well, Rene may have some friends here after all. The light might have been a landing signal."

With little hope that Rene Martin would come flying in in broad daylight, the two of them explored the edges of the clearing and finally came to a small hut, well concealed in a heavy clump of underbrush.

After making sure it was unoccupied, Camero finally forced the door open and stepped inside. It was one small room, and showed signs of having been occupied recently.

There was a small oil stove, and rummaging around on a shelf he found a partially filled tin of imitation coffee.

"It's only ersatz," he said, "but when we heat some water, it may not taste bad. At least it will be warm and my system is crying for something hot after our night in the open."

Taking a pan, he went off toward the creek and returned a short time later with it filled to the brim. Meanwhile Claire had solved the intricacies of the oil stove. It was lighted and a can of soup she had found was heating in another pan.

Using their reserve supply of bread sparingly, they made a fairly good meal, and both felt much refreshed afterward. After cleaning up, Cameron insisted that Claire should lie down and rest while he stood guard outside.

* * *

The girl fell into a stupor-like coma almost as soon as she dropped on the built-in bunk. Her watch pointed to 4 o'clock when she awakened, completely rested. She started up guiltily, and after heating the water again and preparing another meal of hot soup and imitation coffee, she stepped outside.

She had a sudden fright when she didn't immediately see Bill but when she called softly, he appeared almost at once from a clump of bushes nearby.

"There have been dozens of planes flying over during the day," he told her. "I kept hoping every minute that one might drop down here and prove to be Rene's, and then I realized how silly that was. If he comes, he'll come alone."

Claire stood watch outside while he ate, and then made him lie down on the bunk she had so recently vacated. Despite his protests that he wasn't tired he was asleep in less than a minute, and he didn't even stir when she leaned down and touched his lips lightly with her own.

The girl, careful not to expose herself to any one who might stray into the clearing, sat beside a tree and gazed up into the sky. Help, if it came, must come from there.

As she watched, she mused over her situation. Just a few short days ago, she had been aboard the St. Croix, expecting to sail for home and the safety of neutral waters. Now, less than three weeks later, she and Bill were hiding in a clump of trees no more than thirty miles from Berlin, both of them fugitives who must surely face a firing squad if they were caught, branded as spies of Adolph Hitler's enemies.

Happiness lay before them — if they could again reach France—and safety. When they sailed for America, instead of occupying widely separated cabins, they would sail as Mr. and Mrs. William A. Cameron.

It was something Claire felt was well worth all she had been through, and she breathed frequent and fervent prayers that some guardian angel would guide Rene safely through the perils of a flight over enemy country and to the tiny clearing where they waited.

* * *

Dusk came almost before she realized it and with approaching darkness her hopes arose. She saw a lone plane, poised high in the heavens, its wings gleaming like gold in the fading rays of the setting sun, and she had a sudden feeling that it was Rene. It must be!

She leaped to her feet, ran to the hut and shook Cameron. He awakened gasping, his arms flailing, and she had to dodge to avoid being struck.

"What—what is it?" he demanded, as he finally realized it was Claire who had aroused him from the first sound sleep he had had in several days.

"I—I think it's Rene!" she cried. "I saw a plane high to the West, and I had a feeling . . ."

"Let's hope it is," he said, rubbing his eyes. "But the air has been full of planes all day. It's probably just another one heading for home."

Nevertheless, he went with her outside, and followed her arm as she pointed out the plane, now much lower, and sweeping in a wide circle. As they watched it, it disappeared from sight over the tops of the trees and Cameron uttered an expression of disgust. Whether it was exasperation at having been awakened prematurely, or disappointment Claire didn't know, but as he turned away, she continued to search the darkening sky with her eyes.

Suddenly she shouted.

"There it is, Bill! There it is!"

She pointed to the plane, now approaching from the east, and losing altitude so rapidly that it seemed to fairly skim the tops of the trees as it swept over the clearing. She waved frantically, and then the plane again vanished over the trees, but a minute later it came back, dropping down with the suddenness of a bird shot on the wing. Claire and Cameron were racing across the field toward it as it skipped and bumped along the ground and finally came to a stop in a cloud of dust.

* * *

By the time they were twenty yards away, the ship had turned, headed in the opposite direction. Now the motor was idling.

Before they reached it, they saw the dark figure of a man climb over the edge of the cockpit, toss something back into the plane, and then run across the field in the direction they had come.

They were panting when they came to the side of the plane, and in the dimness they could scarcely recognize the flyer who was grinning down at them, his goggles pushed up onto his helmet.

"Rene!" Claire screamed. "You've come!"

"Get in—hurry!" he commanded. "We haven't a minute to lose!"

Every Meal Caused Distress Till Local Man Got Vendol

Vendol is the medicine local people are finding so wonderful for relief of many troubles when due to constipation and need of a kidney diuretic.

THE VENDOL MAN at Central Drug Store

"Vendol acted so quickly for me that I could feel the benefits after the first few doses," declared Mr. Henry Freund, residing on Route No. 5, a Maintenance Man at Westinghouse Electric, in conversation with the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store recently.

"I was bothered with constipation all the time, and this seemed to keep my stomach in an upset condition. I often had a burning sensation in my stomach no matter whether I ate much or little, it was all the same, and the "heartburn," gas, sourness, and heavy feeling made me miserable. The gas was so bad sometimes that I felt if I could only draw a full breath, it would be such a relief; then again it felt as though I had a lump in my throat which I couldn't swallow.

"Many mornings I'd awaken with a vile taste in my mouth, tongue coated, little spots floating before my eyes, and with a little dizziness and headache.

"Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets changed my feelings, and that is why I think it such grand medicine. It acted fine on my bowels and gave the most satisfying relief from constipation, and since getting this splendid result I am not bothered as before with a sour, acid, gassy stomach, and awaken every morning after a restful sleep without the bad taste, coated tongue, dizzy feelings, or headache. I can strongly recommend Vendol to anyone who suffers from these troubles if they are due to constipation, because I find it a grand medicine."

Vendol is made from extracts of Roots and Herbs with Mild Alkalines added and gives splendid relief from many outward symptoms when they are due to constipation or need of a mild kidney diuretic. Give it a trial and see what it will do for you.

Most all leading druggists sell Vendol, and I invite you to come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & 4th Sts.; ask for me, the Vendol Man, and I will explain all about my medicine and how it can help you just as it has many well known people right here in town.

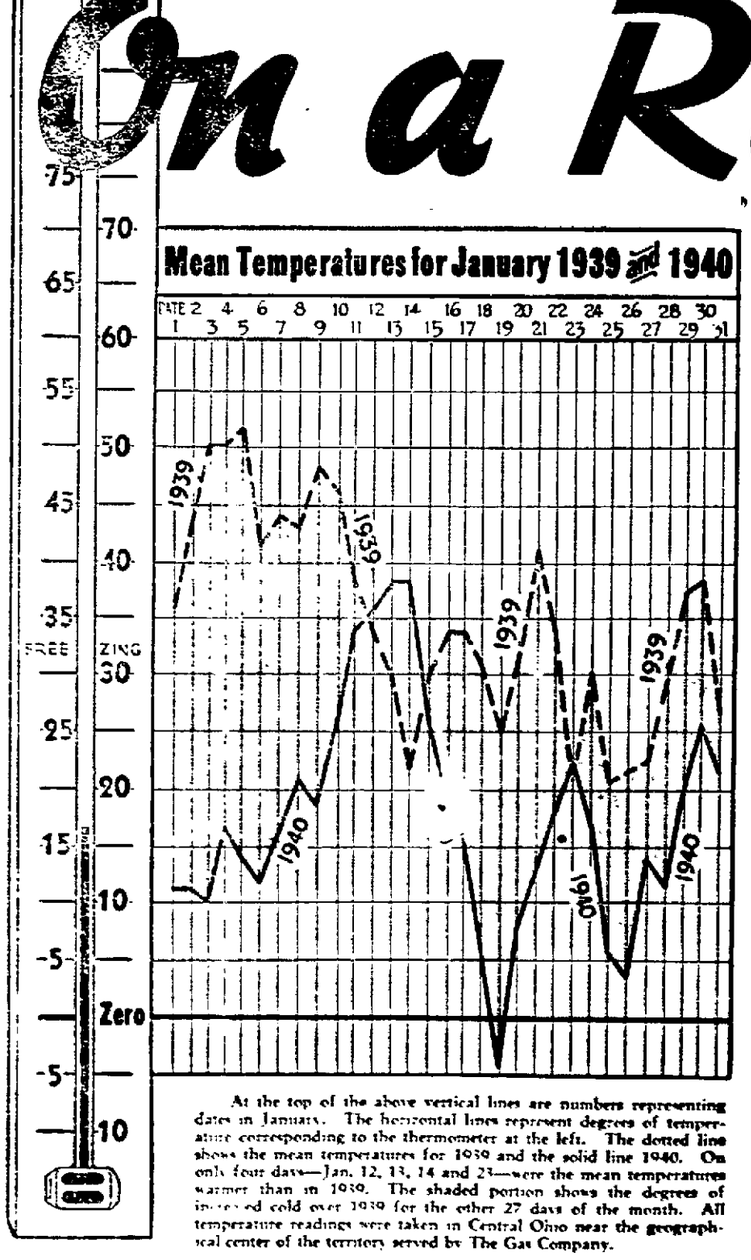
On a Rampage!



At the top of the above vertical lines are numbers representing dates in January. The horizontal lines represent degrees of temperature corresponding to the thermometer at the left. The dotted line shows the mean temperatures for 1939 and the solid line 1940. On only four days—Jan. 12, 13, 14 and 23—were the mean temperatures warmer than in 1939. The shaded portion shows the degrees of increased cold over 1939 for the other 27 days of the month. All temperature readings were taken in Central Ohio near the geographical center of the territory served by The Gas Company.

January, 1940, was the coldest month in the last 22 years. Average temperature for the month was 17.7 degrees—just 17.6 degrees colder than the average temperature a year ago.

Whatever fuel you used, it took a lot more to heat your home. Not only did families who regularly heat with gas use more, but those who depend upon other fuels resorted to radiant heaters and range ovens for supplementary heat. The total volume of gas handled through our lines exceeded any previous 31-day period in our history!

Years of engineering research and investments of millions of dollars were necessary to prepare us to meet such an emergency. No customer was without gas through failure in supply. No regular industrial user had to curtail or shut down, forcing men out of work.

Likely your gas bill for January was considerably higher but, when you consider how gas service met your emergency, you'll agree the service was worth it. We are sure our customers join in thanking our many hundreds of employees who endured unusual hardships to meet these extreme demands.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY M'LEMORE

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)—In talking to any American league manager other than Joe McCarthy I always try to keep from mentioning the New York Yankees. It is the same sort of politeness that prevents one from talking about Thanksgiving to a turkey, the 1936 electoral vote to Landon, or Chevrolets to Henry Ford.

* * *

So the other day when I ran across Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, I steered the conversation away from the Yankees as long as I could. Wes discussed salmon fishing in the Upper Rogue river, Barrymore's chances of a permanent reconciliation with Elaine, whether tatting would ever become fashionable again, and whether or not Manx cats really minded not having tails.

* * *

"I can't stand this any longer," Dykes finally said. "I know what you really want to know, so let's talk about the Yankees and get it over with."

"Okay," I said. "And they can't be such a tough team. You beat them four times out of the 22 times you played them last year. You must have had a lot of tough luck in those 18 games you lost to them."

"We did, and we won't lose that many to them this year." Dykes said with a defiance, born perhaps of the knowledge that the baseball season is a full two months away. "It isn't the Yankees as a team that bothers us and all the other clubs in the league, but their key man. Let them lose their key man and the result would be a mad scramble for the pennant."

* * *

Dykes' line of reasoning intrigued me, and braving the fumes of the alleged cigar he was smoking, I moved closer and asked him the name of this all important Yankee key man.

"Well, Bill Dickey," Dykes said. "Or if not Dickey, Joe DiMaggio. Or just let something happen to that second baseman, Joe Gordon, and where'll they be? And don't overlook Red Rolfe at third base as a key man. He means a lot to that team. And if you don't think Crosetti is a great shortstop and vital to the Yankees, you're crazy."

"What about Red Ruffing?" I asked.

"Now you're talking," Dykes said. "There is a real key man. Let that sore arm of his go dead and then watch the Yankees. Or let something happen to Pearson or Donald or that slugging outfielder, Charley Keller, and where'll they be?"

When Dykes had finished naming his key "man" I discovered that he had listed no fewer than nine, and it was easy to see that if something happened to these nine men simultaneously it would make it pretty tough for the Yankees.

* * *

After naming the key men on the Yankees Dykes expressed the opinion that while the Yankees were very offensive to the other seven clubs in the league, their real greatness rested in their defensive perfection.

* * *

"The Red Sox have power enough, and so have Detroit and Cleveland," Dykes said. "But they haven't the defense. The Yanks have great pitching and it's next to impossible to get a ball through that infield or over the outfield. But they won't beat us any 18 times this year. They've got to slip sometime and maybe this will be the season."

Fights at Armory Tonight

"BULL" MARINO . . .

Marino to Display Wares in "Battle Royal" on Wrestling Card.

GEORGE BECKER, the clean limbed, brilliant young German-American lightheavyweight from New York City whose deeds on the local wrestling pad have written many bright pages into local mat history will return to action locally tonight in the Armory for the first time in many, many months.

* * *

George is to meet Davey Reynolds, the newest hero of Mansfield mat fans in a battle of favorites—scheduled for two best out of three falls with an hour and a half time limit under the rules of the Midwest Wrestling association.

* * *

Tonight's match figures strictly as a toss-up, but one that should provide local fans with a brilliant exhibition of scientific mat work.

Becker of course needs no introduction. His great-battles here with Mephisto, Weidner, Fischer and other mat greats speak for themselves.

* * *

Reynolds is newer but Davey has wrestled his way into the hearts of local fans and whichever of these two youngsters emerges victorious tonight, it'll be a popular victory.

* * *

Opening tonight's card is the battle royal in which Frank Wolfe of Australia, Charley Layden of Indiana, Larry Mundo of Illinois, "Bull" Marino of New York and Bob Steele local boy will battle each other. The last two men remaining in the ring will meet in the semi-final a two out of three falls match with a 45 minutes limit.

Nelson, Hogan Play for Golf Crown Today

Collect 271's in Sleet and Rain in Texas Open Tournament.

SAN ANTONIO — (AP) — Two boyhood pals — national open champion Byron Nelson and Ben Hogan—tee off today in an 18-hole match to play off their tie for the Texas open golf title.

* * *

Only a little more than a decade ago Nelson, freckled and carefree, and Hogan, small and quiet, worked on each other's swings while waiting to caddy at the Glen Garden course at Ft. Worth, Tex.

* * *

Both finished the 72 holes in 271—thirteen shots under par—despite sleet, rain and driving winds.

Nelson came from behind to tie his home-town friend yesterday then hurried into the clubhouse to shout at Hogan:

"What do you mean Bennie—shooting all those 66's?"

"Just to get a crack at you," grinned Hogan.

LONDOS IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Making his second appearance of the season on a Cleveland mat, Jim Londos will wrestle Ivan Rasputin tonight at the Arena with a crowd of 10,000 in prospect.

Three Races Offer Thrills In Nation's Cage Program

NEW YORK—(AP)—There is no need to worry about the state of the basketball races in the eastern league, the Missouri Valley conference, the Southwest conference, the Big Seven or the southern division of the Pacific coast loop this week—the leaders of those circuits appear set to stay on top for some time.

Meanwhile, basketball fans can concentrate upon the Big Ten, Big Six and northern coast conferences, and the customary confusion in the south's two circuits.

The leadership situation in the various major circuits shapes up this way:

Eastern league—Dartmouth won 5, lost 1, has beaten all its most important rivals by big scores; Missouri valley—Oklahoma Aggies 8-0, the race now is the second place; Southwest—Texas 7-1, little danger in sight although Rice threatens; Big Seven—Colorado 7-1; Friday's Utah-Utah State game should eliminate one challenger; Coast southern—Southern California, 6-0, outclasses its field.

Big Ten—Iidiana tied Purdue at 4-1, but last Saturday's 46-39 win over the Boilermakers gave Indiana a big edge; Big Six—Oklahoma and McNatt remained in front of Missouri last week, but they will have to trim the Tigers Tuesday to stay there.

Coast northern — Oregon State and Washington, running 1-2, split last week's series, but each one has to take on Oregon's national champions this week; South—Duke's 50-44 triumph over North Carolina settled the Blue Devils firmly in the southern conference lead, while Alabama's decisive defeat by Kentucky made Tennessee's hold on the southeastern conference lead stronger.

But regular season standings don't mean much in these circuits to any team that can finish in the first eight and thus qualify for the title tournaments.

Tygers Tackle Ashland High Combine Tuesday

Seek Revenge When They Entertain Ancient Rivals on Senior High Planks Tomorrow Night.

THERE'S likely to be some sizzling action on the Mansfield high court Tuesday night.

Ashland high's hoopsters invade Mansfield to tangle with Coach Vern Hoffman's Tygers and indications point to a hectic battle.

* * *

These two combines clashed at Ashland recently and the North Central Ohio representatives won a close decision in a contest that brought numerous protests on spotty officiation from fans.

* * *

Whether the Tygers are capable of halting the high-scoring Ashland machine remains to be seen, but if they duplicate the performance turned in against Shelby Saturday night their chances of victory are good.

Mansfield has had trouble in most of its important games in getting its attack to functioning in the opening half and should it encounter the same difficulty tomorrow night Ashland may chalk up another triumph.

One of the Tygers principal worries will be to halt Vince Barr, Ashland's crack forward. In the tussle at Ashland the sharpshooter accounted for 10 points.

* * *

Ashland ran wild in the opening half of the first tilt, and Mansfield was unable to overcome that early advantage. Hoffman hopes his Tygers will hit their stride at the opening whistle.

* * *

Hoffman started Harry Phillips and Jack Shiplet along with Russ Beer, Gene Miller and Don Rose in the Shelby game, and expects to send the same five into the setto tomorrow night.

Wonders Changed Little

Four Members of Original Waterloo Club to Play Here Thursday.

FOUR of the members of the great Waterloo high school team which swept through the Ohio state basketball tournament two years in a row are still teammates on the Waterloo Wonder professional club, which will meet the City League All-Stars on the Mansfield high school gym Thursday night.

* * *

Original members are Byrl Drummond, Curt McMahon and Wyman and Orylin Roberts.

* * *

Bill Hosket, former Ohio State star, is another member of the club as is Bud Moodler, erstwhile Defiance star, who later performed with Detroit in the National pro league.

The Waterloo team has dropped only one game in 35 appearances this season, and the lone defeat was administered by the New York Celtics.

Mansfielders Lose To All-Star Club

The Mansfielders dropped two games to the Andorka's All-Stars in a North Central Ohio Traveling league match at the Meder alleys Sunday. Farrell Hipp was high for the Mansfield team with a 630. The losers hit a 1023 middle game, but the visitors topped it with a 1094, and then added a 1102 as they piled up a 3090 team total. S. Nagy scored a 664 for the All-Stars.

Ready to Battle For Club System

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Branch Rickey, who as general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals heads one of baseball's largest farm club chains, is ready to go to bat to preserve the system.

* * *

Rickey launched his opposition to Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis' plan to eliminate "farms" in an address before a gathering of baseball's old timers here Saturday night.

* * *

"It would kill every league in baseball, except possibly the major leagues, within five years," he predicted. "The farm system was, and still is, the savior of baseball."

Former Gridders Join Pitt Staff

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — The University of Pittsburgh announced today the appointment of two former Pitt football players, Harold Stebbins and Luther Richards, to its grid coaching staff.

Stebbins, halfback on the 1936-38 teams, will become backfield coach, succeeding Mike Nicksick, who went to West Virginia university to assist Coach Bill Kern.

* * *

Richards, guard with the 1935-37 squads, will have the duties of guard coach and full-time work in the intramural department.

Claims Feller Didn't Get 'Breaks' From the Umpires.

HOT SPRINGS—(AP)—Catcher Rollie Hemsley claimed today his young Cleveland battery mate, Bobby Feller, didn't get the same "break" from the umps on balls and strikes that the other chuckers received last season. Hemsley did not mention any umpire by name. "Feller was as close to that plate as any of them," Rollie asserted today. "They just don't give him the same break in calling balls they give the other pitchers. They call balls on Feller that would be strikes for the other pitchers."

Sets New Big Ten Record

Hapac Collects 34 Points Against Minnesota for Single Game Mark.

By STEVE SINDER

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—For today at least, Big Bill Hapac of Illinois steals part of the glory from Indiana and Purdue as the Big Ten basketball campaign reaches the halfway mark tonight with the Hoosier Hotshots tied for the lead.

* * *

It was one of the finest exhibitions of speed basketball the Big Ten will see this season—that 46 to 39 Indiana victory over Purdue Saturday night—but Hapac's sensational shooting against Minnesota topped everything on the books.

* * *

He took 31 shots from the field and was successful with 13. He attempted 11 foul shots and sank eight. Total: 34 points, four better than the all-time single game scoring record set by Ernie Andres of Indiana against Illinois in 1938.

Indiana defends its share of the lead against Michigan tonight and Purdue was a strong favorite to retain its share at Chicago. Northwestern travels to Illinois, Ohio State's defending champions meet Iowa at Iowa City and Minnesota plays at Wisconsin. Illinois, Northwestern, Ohio State and Minnesota are tied for third with three victories and two defeats to four victories and one defeat for the leaders.

Of the two pacemakers, Indiana faces the tougher job tonight. Michigan ran into a hot Northwestern team Saturday and suffered a 47 to 34 upset.

Now the Wolves are fighting to remain in the championship race and if Indiana has a letdown after its vital meeting with Purdue, Michigan will have that even break.

An important factor in this race still may be Chicago's zone defense. Purdue had considerable difficulty penetrating this zone last season and a defeat by Chicago's cellar kings would be disastrous at this point. Ohio State however, had little trouble handing Chicago its fifth straight defeat, 44 to 36, on 23 points by Center Johnny Shick.

* * *

The tie for third will be partially broken tonight when the two top scorers of the league tangle in the Northwestern-Illinois contest at Champaign. Hapac's 76 points in four games lead the conference. Dick Klein, sophomore guard for Northwestern, is second with 70 points in five games. Illinois was a slight favorite.

* * *

Minnesota hopes to come back after its 60 to 31 shellacking at Illinois by defeating Wisconsin. Wisconsin lost to Iowa Saturday, 37 to 35.

DISCUSS SEASON

YOUNGSTOWN — (INS) — The 1940 season will be discussed when officials of the eight clubs in the Mid-Atlantic Baseball league meet in Youngstown Thursday. Elmer M. Dailey, league president, announced today.

LAUDS LINCOLN AT DEDICATION

Farley Calls Him 'Founder of Good Will' in Address at New Salem, Ill.

who aspire to public office was "the character is the true foundation of statesmanship."

The New Salem postoffice was abolished in 1836 and Lincoln was left without a job The town's population had dwindled because the early settlers had begun moving westward. The village has been restored as a Lincoln shrine.

Mail was brought to the postoffice today in a dramatic demonstration contrasting the old and new methods of transportation. One batch was delivered by stagecoach as it was in Lincoln's day. The coach required eight hours to mke the 20-mile run from Springfield. Later, another batch of mail was dropped from an airplane which covered the distance from Springfield in 10 minutes.

"The primary purpose in replacing New Salem on the postal map is not commercial," Farley said "The idea is not to enhance the revenues of Uncle Sam. Rather, it is a loftier motive. It is a wish to aid in rekindling the interest of the nation in New Salem.

"The fortunate people who come here will carry away more than a sense of historical association. They will realize again the sublime truth that human greatness is not born in success or material wealth, but in the hidden recesses of the soul of a man."

YA JIST CAN'T LARN 'EM KIDS

They're A-feered of Black Cats Even In Collitch.

LUBBOCK, Tex.—(AP)—Education isn't potent enough to wean people away from ancient and honored superstitions

At least at Texas Technological college they found it that way.

Forty-seven per cent of the students, responding in a poll, admitted they think black cats and bad luck go together; about one-fourth said if they walked under a ladder they would expect the worst and others said breaking a mirror is almost sure to bring seven years of ill luck.

HAS SNOWBALL INOCULATION

School Principal Gets Idea to Spare Passers-by.

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—Principal F. R. Born of Taft Junior high school thinks he saved passersby a peck of trouble recently.

There was a snow storm that left an abundance of snow ball-making material. Born called a recess and encouraged his 900 students to stage a 20-minute snowball battle.

"It is perfectly natural for boys and girls to want to throw snowballs," says Born and he thinks if he hadn't permitted them to indulge in the sport against each other they would have used passersby for targets.

STRATEGY SAVES LIFE.

PERTH, Australia —(U.P.)—Death from hunger and thirst was averted by Thomas Hamilton, 51, after wandering lost for three days in 15 foot high grass when he reached a telegraph line. He still had enough strength to shoot off one insulator and sever the wire with a second bullet. The repair crew which arrived from Broome, 60 miles away, found him exhausted in a hole which he had dug with his hands in search of water.

INSISTS BOMBS CAN'T HURT SPAN

Engineer Says $37,000,000 Bridge Needs No War Insurance.

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— Directors of the $37,000,000 Golden Gate bridge have turned down a proposition by Lloyd's of London to write war risk insurance on the structure. They don't consider the bridge needs it.

As explained by Russel G. Cone, maintenance engineer, the few vital points in the bridge are so small that the possibility of a high-flying airman hitting them with a bomb is infinitesimal.

The cable holding up the bridge is round, which would cause bombs to glance off except in case of a square center hit.

Moreover, it was pointed out, no bridge in the world is surrounded by heavier defensive fire than this. Six forts and two army air fields are nearby.

Details of the amount of foreign aid to Finland, and the origins of it, are carefully concealed. However, I learned enough in Finland to know that it is now arriving in much larger amounts than is generally realized.

Within six or eight weeks the Finns will have enough fast fighter planes to make the present mass flights of Soviet bombers over Finland a dangerous business. The present almost unchecked predominance in the air of the Russians will cease shortly, the Finns believe.

Thus far, owing to the short hours of daylight, Russian air predominance has failed to hinder the Finnish war effort as much as might be expected. The Finns have been able to move their transport unhindered at night on roads and railroads.

BISHOP WOULD SHARE WEALTH

Wants to Give Palace, Part of Income to Poor.

ELY, England —(AP)— Dr. Bernard Heywood, 68-year-old Anglican Bishop of Ely, has offered to move from his rambling bishop's "palace" to a modest eight-room house and give up a quarter of his $16,000 income "to advance the kingdom of God."

Bishop Heywood, who has seven children, said he lived in a "so-called palace" that could "almost accommodate the inhabitants of a small village."

Suggesting that the church "today seems to the average man to belong to the privileged classes," the bishop said every diocesan bishop should be set free to vacate his palace, surrendering enough of his income to enable the church to keep up the house for some religious or philanthropic purpose.

Ohio River Ice Gorge Crushes Small Boat Landings

COAL DIGGER AND 6 BARGES SWEPT ASHORE

Engineers Expect Complete Crackup of Ice as Heavy Floes Start Moving.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—U. S. engineers expected a complete crackup of ice on the Ohio river as heavy floes moved down-stream today, carrying with them small boat harbor moorings and barges.

Ice spewed over the banks, tossed a heavy coal digger and six barges ashore as it broke loose at Madison, Ind., last night. Water backed up river for miles by the stoppage started slowly to recede.

A gorge ten miles in length held fast at dam 39, about 65 miles west of here, but lockmasters said it might move any time. The gorge started last night, threw ice 20 feet high over a retaining wall and electric turbine house at the river's edge, and then suddenly stopped.

A mass of ice jamming the Ohio above Point Pleasant, West Virginia started out last night at a speed of three or four miles an hour. Another floe was moving near Pomeroy, O., according to reports.

Smaller packs ranging in size from a few feet to several miles in length crept through Cincinnati, crushing two small boat harbors built of wood, one a 500-foot structure.

Maj. Fred Bass, engineer in charge of this district, said there was no danger of floods because of the low stage of the river, which started slowly to recede as the ice moved.

The water also started down at dam 39, still gorge-locked, after finding a path under the ice. Rivermen said the river reached a crest of 27.4 feet there, far from the 50-foot flood stage.

The Ohio was at a depth of about 16.2 feet and rising at Louisville, which in the past has suffered heavy losses, but the flood stage there was reported as 40 feet.

Rains and warm weather speeded the ice movement over the Ohio valley, meteorologists said. Fear was expressed that ice which gave evidence of breaking loose in the Olentangy, above its confluence with the Scioto river at Columbus, might damage bridges when it starts out.

Tornado-Battered Town In Georgia Starts to Rebuild

ALBANY, Ga.—(AP)—This tornado-torn city, its death list cut to 17, but its battered mid-section still under martial law, began rebuilding today with assurance "the sky's the limit" in federal financial aid.

The revised estimate of dead—one white woman and 16 colored persons, came from Red Cross Field Director James W. Cullens. He said elimination of duplications had pared the list from an earlier figure of more than 20.

Damage calculations ranged from $3,000,000 to $9,000,000 from the twister—60 seconds of devastation that ripped through 30 city blocks early Saturday.

More than 300 were treated for injuries, Cullens said. The homeless was estimated by the Red Cross at 1,000 out of a population of nearly 20,000.

Canada Mourns Death of Lord Tweedsmuir

Up and Down THE STREET

Back from New Orleans where they attended the Mardi Gras last week, Atty. and Mrs. T. J. McDermott said the recent cold wave froze the flowers and palm trees in the historic southern city and spoiled some of its beauty for the carnival season. "The palm trees had turned brown and flowers were withered from the cold," Mrs. McDermott said. The couple made the trip by automobile and had more trouble with icy roads in Mississippi than in Ohio, they said.

After slipping and sliding for more than half hour in an effort to walk home in Saturday night's ice storm, a Mansfield woman gave up when she was just a half block away. She wouldn't venture the half block down an ice-coated hill, so she groped her way to a corner store and phoned a taxi and even the skilled driver had a job on his hands to maneuver her to her residence safely.

At least two Boy Scouts of the Johnny Appleseed Area will be assured of attending the annual summer camp as the result of a $5 gift by Scout Executive Floyd Dent to William Ritchie of Lexington. The $5 was given Ritchie as a reward for finding a cocker spaniel that had escaped from a local dog hospital, and he in turn gave it to Dent with instructions to use it to send two scouts who cannot pay their own way, to summer camp. The dog was found on the Millsborough road.

LEWIS AWAITS REPLY TO OFFER

CIO President 61 Today Looks for Answer From Green on New Peace Proposal.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President John L. Lewis of the Congress of Industrial Organizations entered his 61st year today engaged in major economic and political struggles.

On the economic front he awaited a definite answer to his latest offer to lead the CIO's claimed 4,000,000 members and all of its unions back into the rival American Federation of Labor on March 15.

Politically, he continued his vigorous criticism of President Roosevelt and his administration for alleged failure to solve major national problems, and especially for failing to provide work for the 10,000,000 unemployed.

There was little indication that Lewis' latest peace plan would be acceptable to the AFL because it differed only in minor respects from previous offers which the AFL rejected as impracticable because it would transfer the fight from outside to within the Federation.

AFL President William Green's first reaction, however, was not a flat rejection. He suggested that if Lewis were serious in his proposal that it should be made to the AFL peace committee. Lewis did not comment on that, but he had already called on President Roosevelt to obtain a definite answer from Green. The CIO committee has refused to meet with the AFL committee since last April because Lewis contended that such meetings would be fruitless.

Lewis refused birthday interviews and his family planned no special celebration.

SHE SHOULD BE IN WASHINGTON

Woman Stays on Ranch, Pays Off $80,000 Debt.

LINCOLN, Neb.—(AP)—A woman who licked an $80,000 debt has been named a Nebraska master farmer.

She is Mrs. Essie E. Davis of Cherry county, who gave up a dry goods business for ranching when she married A. T. Davis in 1913.

Two years later her husband died, leaving her with a $3,650-acre ranch, 3,000 cattle and an $80,000 debt.

To get summer grazing land for her cattle, Mrs. Davis went further in debt. Then came agricultural chaos after the World war and many suggestions, all declined, that she sell out.

Today she has a debt-free 22,290-acre ranch with 2,500 Hereford cattle.

GOVERNOR FAILS TO RALLY FROM 2 OPERATIONS

State Funeral Arranged for Wednesday; Ashes to Be Buried in Scotland.

(By United Press)

MONTREAL, Que.—Canada was plunged today into seven days of mourning for Lord Tweedsmuir, 64-year-old governor general who died last night after a third brain operation to relieve a concussion suffered last Tuesday in a fall in his bathroom.

Sir Lyman Duff, chief justice of the supreme court, took over the duties of administration of the Dominion which is engrossed in both war with Germany and a federal election scheduled for March 26.

The death of the governor-general, who had been unconscious since an hour after his fall at the vice-regal residence in Ottawa, raised no serious political problems.

Although as viceroy, personal representative of Great Britain's king in the greatest British dominion, he had power to appoint the judiciary, members of the senate and the chief executives of all nine Canadian provinces, he was serving only a five year term that would have expired this summer, and had indicated his intention of retiring to his native Scotland then. It was believed that court circles in London already had a successor in mind, Lord Elgin and the Duke of Devonshire having been most prominently mentioned.

Lord Tweedsmuir, formerly John Buchan, a renowned scholar and author, was elevated to the peerage after his appointment as the 15th Canadian governor-general. He took the title Baron Tweedsmuir of Elsfield, Tweedsmuir being his native hamlet in Scotland, and Elsfield his residence at Oxford.

The body, with an escort of 100 Canadian grenadier guards, arrives at Ottawa, the Dominion capital, at noon, to lie in state in the senate chamber. A state funeral will be held in St. Andrews Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon, then the body will be returned here for cremation. The ashes will be buried in Scotland.

The viceroy died at 7:13 p. m. He had undergone two brain operations Friday, when his condition became desperate, one at Ottawa and the other here, after a 100-mile train ride. When he began sinking yesterday evening, a blood transfusion was made. The donor was Ernest Brown, 38, unemployed mechanic. He was on the hospital's list of donors and arrived unshaved and in tattered clothes in response to an emergency call.

"Mr. Farley's intimates said Mr. Farley agreed to the use of his name (in the Massachusetts primary) only after deciding to take Mr. Roosevelt's word that he had no intention of being a candidate for the third time."

FAIR ENOUGH!

A Word About American Press, Their Attitude on Nazi and Red Atrocities

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Most of my letters from members of Father Coughlin's supporters chide the American press for failure to do right by General Franco during the Spanish civil war, the principal complaint being that the news matter and editorial comment were not properly aghast at the atrocities of the Loyalists against priests and nuns and the desecration of holy things in the early days. This is intended to suggest that the American press was in sympathy with the Communists, it being held, as though there could be no argument about it, that the Loyalist side was purely communistic, with no discount.

There is no need to rely on opinion, for the files will show that the atrocities were reported in the papers and that they were editorially deplored.

It is my impression, however, that they caused less shock than the persecutions of the Jews of Germany, particularly the terror that followed the retributive killing of a Nazi attache of the German embassy in Paris. It occurred to me then that we were raising a great to-do over a debauch consisting mainly of burning and looting and the confiscation of money, attended by comparatively little bloodshed, and I put this down to the fact that the world had an exaggerated opinion of the intelligence and character of the Nazis.

The disgust was aggravated by the announcement of Joseph Goebbels that this revolting exhibition was but a healthy expression of the true German spirit. The world stubbornly expected better than this from the great German people.

* * *

In Spain there was a difference. In the first place, the horrors occurred in the mad early days of a complete Civil war, and were by no means unilateral, as the diplomats say. They were bilateral or reciprocal and, moreover, Franco was using Mohammedans and later used Italians and Germans to attack his own people. He attacked the government, and he was identified with the church.

Of course, the Communists whipped up the fury of the masses of Apostate Spaniards, and I am one who never allowed personal attacks on Bill Carney of the New York Times by the evil Communist journalistic claque to impair my belief in the expose of Communist influence in Madrid, which he published after he bailed out of the capital and before he was assigned to Franco's army.

I believe he told the truth and that the Communists of Russia ran the government after the war began, but have no opinion as to whether they were in control before the revolution broke. The intricacies of Spanish politics are such that the American public simply can't have an intelligent opinion on that.

But in view of the attacks of the Communists on the American press and in view of the capitalistic nature of the publishing industry in the United States, it seems absurd to say that the American newspapers ever favored the Loyalists as Communists.

Sympathy there may have been for democracy in Spain, and it will be remembered that Fascism and Nazism, both terribly abhorrent to Americans, were on Franco's side. Now the same Nazis who were crusaders with Franco are engaged in the cold-blooded work, or perhaps it might better be called play—for cruelty seems to give them joy—of annihilating the whole Polish nation. They are slaughtering priests and defiling sacred places and objects, and, for the special torture of this religious people, "even girls, especially the good looking ones, are being deported to Germany, to the despair of their families," as Cardinal Hlond's report says. So we were right about the Nazis all the time.

* * *

Incidentally, although the Communists circulated photographs of rows of bodies of children who were said to have been killed by Franco's bombs, the same Communists now applaud the slaughter of Finnish civilians, including any children who might be in the way, by Stalin's planes.

They also attempt to discredit as fakes the pictures sent back by American photographers on the ground. All this is just as well, for they have no influence except to convince people that the Communist is vile beyond description.

By now the world is so inured to atrocity that even Cardinal Hlond's report has received less after comment than the Nazi pogrom. The world has learned to expect nothing but the worst from the German nation whenever it has strength to persecute and ravish, but the American press has followed a fairly straight line all the way.

Our papers have reported the news to the best of their ability—which, incidentally, is of the best—and our editorial opinion consistently has hated the foul horrors perpetrated by both Communism and Fascism, including the Loyalist slaughters and the sanctimonious butcheries of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—People keep writing in about a chap named Glenn Ford, who it seems was in a movie called "Heaven With a Barbedwire Fence." They want to know about Glenn Ford, so here goes:

He is a slight young man with dark brown hair and green eyes that are almost yellow. He is slight because, ever since he appeared as Tom Thumb in a Tom Thumb wedding at the age of four years, he has wanted to be an actor. That may not be a clear connection but actually it is—he has worked so hard at acting that he never has been able to put on much weight.

He is more than slightly Welsh in descent. His real name is Gwyllyn Ford. He was born in Glenford, province of Quebec, Canada, on May 1, 1916. He took the name Glenn Ford, after his home town, because so many people thought Gwyllyn Ford was a girl. He is now an American citizen.

Going to school in Santa Monica, Cal., he kept on being fired by Tom Thumb. He worked in school plays up to the time he finished high school, and also had jobs in all of Santa Monica's then seven little theaters. He worked late, went to school early, and lost weight he never has regained.

* * *

As soon as he finished high school he began hounding local stage producers. He wouldn't take no—"I pestered them into giving me bits." He did a few turns in west coast touring shows before he reached the high spot of his career—a show in New York. He was an off-stage voice in the ill-fated John Beal show "Soliloquy," which lasted three days. He came back home.

From one of his local stage appearances he garnered a screen test. He is not the type whose physique or features cry for testing. He reminds me a little of Mack ("The Killer") Grey, George Raft's friend, only Glenn is younger and better looking. He is a character juvenile, meaning he isn't pretty. That was the trouble with his test.

"You're not pretty enough," they told him, "and you haven't any glammer."

Those were the words. He took the verdict standing up, like a kid who's going to act or bust. But veteran actor Tom Moore, who does some dramatic coaching out at 20th where his test had flopped, invited him back. They were reading lines together when Moore suggested another test. This time Glenn Ford, expecting nothing, clowned a bit, and took his test in stride. That won him the part in the fenced-off "Heaven," he still wasn't the type—character juveniles never are—but now he's at Columbia, where they call him their "top prospect" among the younger players.

* * *

I found him there, in a convict's suit, taking part in a prison-break for a picture called "Men Without Souls." The wall of the steam-room had been blasted by an explosion, and Barton MacLane had been knocked out. Bart was prone in the wreckage, a nasty cut over his sweaty forehead. It was Glenn Ford's job to help a stunt man (working for John Litel) carry MacLane up a flight of stairs. They were blowing steam and dust, real choking dust, into the air. Glenn Ford, like all the others, was gasping, grimy, perspiring. He plunged into the job as if he loved it. He does. He's going to be an actor.

He has to be. The folks back at Glenford, Quebec, have said they'd build a theater and name it after him if he's a success in Hollywood.

Mrs. Roosevelt Joins President In Attack On Soviet

SPEECH DRAWS HISSES FROM YOUTH GROUP

'Sympathies Should Be With Finland,' President's Wife Declares at Meeting.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today joined her president-husband in denouncing Russia's invasion of Finland, telling a stormy meeting of the American Youth congress last night that there never was any excuse for a big country invading a little one.

"Our sympathies, as a free people, should be with Finland," Mrs. Roosevelt told the congress, an alleged Communist front organization.

For that the nation's first lady was hissed.

Mrs. Roosevelt, at the outset, had asked that the 3,000 delegates assembled in a government auditorium withhold their hisses or applause until the end of her open forum, during which she answered many questions. But when she touched on the question of Finland, scattered hissing broke out.

Earlier a disturbance was created in the hall when a delegate, Stephen McArthur of Kearny, N. J., tried to introduce a resolution calling for expulsion of admitted Communists from the congress and condemning the invasion of Finland. McArthur was seized by uniformed department of labor guards and ejected. A similar row had marked the opening of the youth meeting Friday night.

Attacks Bring Cheers.

Delegates at last night's meeting cheered attacks on Great Britain, France, President Roosevelt, the Dies committee and the D. A. R., Rajni Patel, a youth leader from India, sounded the attack on the D. A. R., an attack worded so harshly that it brought gasps from more conservative members.

One delegate, Oscar Kanny of New York, said that he thought it improper that Patel, a guest in this country, should use such language in the presence of the nation's first lady.

Kanny, who represented the youth division of the American Jewish congress, said that he would demand that the Jewish congress withdraw from the youth congress.

NORRIS FAVORS EXTENSION OF MORAL EMBARGO

Senator Says U. S. Action Against Japan, Russia Should Include All Goods.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Senator Norris (Ind-Neb) suggested today that the administration's "moral embargo" against warplane sales to Japan and Russia be extended to all goods.

In addition, he said, American citizens might well cease buying any products from the two countries, which he described as "barbarous."

Norris told reporters that he probably would fight in the senate tomorrow the proposed $100,000,000 increase in capital of the Export-Import bank, making possible new loans to Finland and China.

Such a proposal would commit the government officially, he declared, and might lead to involvement abroad.

Although the foreign relations committee is considering an embargo against Japan, there is little expectation that it will be pressed in the near future unless fresh difficulties over American rites in the Orient should develop.

Senator McCarran (D-Nev), meanwhile, suggested that the United States break off diplomatic relations with Russia. He said there was no doubt that Russia was failing to live up to the agreements which predicted American recognition.

The senate, in recess today, will vote late tomorrow on the Export-Import bank bill. Democratic leaders are certain that it will be approved.

The house, pushing ahead with its consideration of appropriation bills, will take up tomorrow the question of funds for the enlarged navy. A subcommittee already has cut about $100,000,000 from the original request for $954,000,000.

It is still uncertain whether congress will be willing to carry its economy drive into record-breaking defense appropriations. The navy bill will provide the first big test of that issue.

M'GREGOR SAYS TWO PRIMARY FOES BACK HIM

G. O. P. 17th District Congress Nominee Claims Support of Woodward, Dockery.

J. Harry McGregor, Republican nominee for congress in the 17th district who is scheduled to speak here Wednesday night, announced today that his two opponents for the nomination in the special primary last week have pledged their support in the election Feb. 27.

McGregor, Coshocton county representative and majority leader in the Ohio house, said he had received messages from Walter B. Woodward of Bellville and Col. Oliver H. Dockery, jr., of Newark, assuring him they will back him in the campaign.

Byron B. Ashbrook, Johnstown, McGregor's Democratic opponent in the Feb. 27 election, who was to have talked from the same platform with McGregor here Wednesday night, told the Mansfield League of Women Voters today he will be unable to attend because of the death of his aunt in Florida.

Ashbrook, nephew of the late Congressman William A. Ashbrook, said he had designated John F. Correll, Mansfield Young Democratic leader, to represent him at the meeting and answer questions regarding his platform.

McGregor and Correll will speak at 8 p. m. Wednesday at an open meeting at the American Legion hall under the sponsorship of the League of Women Voters.

The office of the late Congressman Ashbrook in Washington has been closed and his quarters given to another congressman, a dispatch from Washington said today.

His secretary, Dora Chaney, was still at work in another office, however, and expects to handle mail from the late congressman's constituents until his successor is chosen Feb. 27.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO MONDAY, FEBRUARY 12 1940

Save the pennies—the politicians will see to it that you don't save many dollars.

It is said of Orson Welles that "at two he talked like a college professor"—but by now he can be fairly well understood.

Interesting to note how many of the "knock-knock" addicts of a couple of years ago have developed into Confucius pests—possibly the Chinese checkers influence.

Chance to Meet the Candidates

WHEN the Mansfield League of Women Voters bring together the two candidates for congress in the Seventeenth district, Wednesday evening in the assembly room of the American Legion Home, that newly formed organization will be performing a valuable service for all who are sufficiently interested to attend the meeting, which is open to the public.

As matters now stand, few residents of Mansfield or vicinity have opportunity to become acquainted with, or even to see, either Byron B. Ashbrook, Democrat, or J. Harry McGregor, Republican, one or the other of whom is to be elected congressman from this district at the February 27 special election, to fill the unexpired term of the late Congressman William A. Ashbrook.

One of the things that makes a meeting of this sort especially worthwhile is that the League of Women Voters is a non-partisan group interested in furthering political education, operating on the fine theory that knowledge of candidates is essential to intelligent voting.

As a national organization, the League of Women Voters now has 37 affiliated state leagues, 557 local leagues and 31 college leagues.

Making its start soon after women gained the right of suffrage, the league has sought to use enfranchisement as an opportunity to help improve the quality of the electorate, to gather facts and study proposed legislation or contemplated changes in present laws.

The league does not endorse candidates but "does endorse measures," and prides itself on maintaining a strictly non-partisan attitude in its study of public issues.

If the intent of keeping partisan bias out of the activities of such an organization can be consistently followed the League of Women Voters has opportunity to perform excellent service in the community by sponsoring public meetings similar to that scheduled for Wednesday evening. Attendance should be sufficiently large to encourage further efforts along this line.

More Immigration Restrictions

THE western hemisphere is no longer the haven for political refugees or families seeking new opportunity, that it used to be. Immigration laws restrict both the numbers and variety of newcomers to these shores.

The Latin American republics have been tightening their restrictions on immigration. In some of them admission requirements vary from week to week, growing stiffer more often than they relax. Among the hurdles aliens must surmount are landing permits from the immigration department, in addition to unexpired passports, police, health, vaccination and trachoma certificates and proof of financial capacity.

In some cases they must present references from one or more firms or persons residing in the land they would enter and from at least two business firms in the land they would leave. Some governments make immigrants surrender all these documents on arrival and obtain special identification cards. Often they must possess rather generous sums of money.

Brazil demands that a certain number of immigrants be farmers and they are not allowed to change occupation for four years.

Chain Store Idea Isn't New

ANY IDEA that chain stores are products of modern times appears to be ill-founded, according to information gleaned by researchers in this subject, who reveal that independent merchants have been successfully meeting chain store competition for more than two thousand years.

As far back as 200 B. C., they relate, a merchant named On Lo Kars operated a chain of stores in China, and in the Middle Ages the Fugger family of Augsburg had a general merchandise chain scattered throughout Germany. A Japanese drug chain, still in existence, is several centuries old.

In the English speaking world, chains were known at least as far back as the Elizabethan period. They were established by explorers and traders to dispose of the odd and unusual wares which adventurers brought back from the far corners of the world.

So far as this continent is concerned, the chain idea goes back to 1670, when the Hudson's Bay company was founded. It still exists and operates many stores, small and large, throughout Canada. And in the United States, President Andrew Jackson was the proprietor of a chain of general stores in the Tennessee mountain country. The largest chain store company now operating in this nation, was started before the Civil war, 1859. Like practically all chains, it began as a single store.

Through all this [illegible] unlimited fields of opportunity for success [illegible] of well-located and intelligently operated [illegible] which still greatly outnumber chain [illegible] United States.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There are two Billys in New York whose establishments go back a long way, back to that little old New York of the mellow, sentimental days that your grandfather remembers, perhaps with a nostalgic sigh. One is Billy Condon, whose Grandpappy, Michael, built the famous old Gaslight Saloon back in 1870. The other is Billy Oysterman, who for 55 years has been a dictator to Manhattan epicures, high and low.

The old Gaslight Saloon, which is really a restaurant, is still on 56th street at First avenue, just a wave of the hand from the East River wharves. It was set up 70 years ago by grandpap Condon, whose design for success was based on the premise that no restaurant could fail if the victuals were tasty and cheap. Consequently, moderns rub their eyes when perusing the old menus of those early days. Steaks were 25 cents. Liquor was a dime a throw. You gave your order and you drank your ale by the flare of the old gas lights.

* * *

WELL, it isn't much changed today, except as to prices. You can't get a good steak for a quarter any longer, but $3 will get you a first rate dinner, for two, with all the trimmings. The fare is still served across the original rough boards. There is the same massive, black walnut bar, with its far-flung mirror and its reflected whiskey bottles. The present Billy still uses his grandpap's big old eyesore of an icebox, and the only light you get still comes from the original gas-jets.

* * *

NOW for Billy No. 2:

In the old days his dad, the original Billy, had a little slip of a place down close to the waterfront where he sold all the oysters you could eat for a dime. The Tammany boys used to drop by, and the impresarios of the day came too. And the fame of Billy the Oysterman began to grow.

Billy was a bluff, big-hearted Englishman with walrus mustaches and an abiding faith in the future of the oyster industry. He wanted his son, the present Billy, to take up the oyster knife, but young Billy had ideas about real estate until the panic of 1907 caught him up and flung him back on his old man's doorstep.

He hasn't strayed since. He has served something like 64,000,000 of the things since taking over shop. Billy has a fine big place uptown now, where almost everybody who craves edibles of the sea goes sooner or later. In the years that he has bossed the joint, presidential candidates, governors, stars, and diplomats of all nations have consulted him on questions of seafood.

He likes to recall a strange trio that frequented his place in the old days, a fellow named William Fox, a clothes sponger, and two companions, who were mostly broke but who dreamed of the fortune they would some day win in the movies. One night Fox's shop burned, and he never went back to it. He went on from there to his adventures in the films.

Billy today is a thoughtful, somewhat stout about the middle, proprietor. You see him strolling about his restaurant, puffing big brown stogies, having a bite now and then. But he never touches oysters. Not that he doesn't like them: he does. But, being continually surrounded by them, he has built up a sort of immunity to them. In all his dealings with oysters, not a single pearl of value has he ever found.
